When the heat is on, drinks on breezy terraces become all the rage in Florence at sundown. Here are six terraces tried and tested this summer by The Florentine's Mindy Burrows and Harry Cochrane. Cin cin!

B-Roof at Grand Hotel Baglioni

To see all of Florence at once, go to B-Roof. The space is cleverly designed with an internal dining room that has wide windows to allow for optimal viewing as well as an outdoor rooftop across varying levels. There's an aperitivo every evening for 15 euro, which includes a drink and a generous plate of finger food. On Wednesday to Saturday the aperitivo is accompanied by live music. The restaurant menu can be enjoyed on any part of the roof, which can seat hundreds, including the decadent B-Green roof garden, a secluded seating area surrounded by blossoming plants and flowers.

Piazza dell'Unità Italiana 6, Florence
